TABLE OF CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>EDITORIAL NOTE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Negro Public College .................................................. 215</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Section 1. The Historical Background of the Public College Movement in the United States

I. The Origin and Development of the Public College in the United States ................................................................. 221
   Walter Crosby Ells, Consultant; and Ernest V. Hollis, Director, College and University Administration Branch, Division of Higher Education, U.S. Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare

II. The Origin and Development of the Land-Grant College in the United States ................................................................. 230
    J. R. Richter, Centennial Director, Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, Washington, D.C.

III. The Origin and Development of the Negro Public College, with Special Reference to the Land-Grant College ............... 240
    Rufus B. Atwood, President, Kentucky State College

Section 2. The Present Status of the Negro Publicly-Supported College

IV. The Negro Publicly-Supported College in Missouri .................. 251
    L. Simington Curtis, Professor of Economics and Government, Harris Teachers College

V. The Negro Public College in Delaware, and Maryland ................ 260
    George J. Fleming, Professor of Political Science, Morgan State College

VI. The Negro Public College in Virginia .................................. 275
    J. Rupert Ficott, Executive Secretary, Virginia Teachers Association, Inc., Richmond, Virginia

VII. Publicly-Supported Negro Higher Institutions in North Carolina ................................................................. 284
    Nelson H. Harris, Professor of Education, Shaw University

VIII. Negro Publicly-Supported Higher Institutions in Florida .......... 293
    Gilbert L. Porter, Executive Secretary, Florida State Teachers Association, Jacksonville, Florida

IX. The Negro Public College in Georgia ................................... 299
    Elias Blake, Assistant Professor of Education, Howard University

X. Negro Publicly-Supported Colleges in Mississippi, and South Carolina ................................................................. 310
    Roger D. Russell, Assistant Professor of Education, Howard University
XI. The Negro Public College in Kentucky, and Oklahoma 322
F. D. Moon, Retired Principal, Douglass High School, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma

XII. Negro Publicly-Supported Higher Institutions in Louisiana 330
Leander L. Boykin, Professor of Education, Florida A & M University

XIII. The Negro Public College in Tennessee 341
Herman H. Long, Director, Race Relations Department A.M.A. United Church Board for Homeland Ministries, Fisk University

XIV. Negro Publicly-Supported Higher Institutions in Texas 349
Vernon McDaniel, Executive Secretary, Teachers State Association of Texas, Austin, Texas

XV. The Negro Public College in Alabama 354
George W. Jones, Executive Secretary, American Teachers Association, Montgomery, Alabama

XVI. The Negro Publicly-Supported College in Arkansas 362
A. Stephen Stephen, Chairman, Department of Sociology, University of Arkansas

Section 3. The Present Status and Future Role of the Negro Public College

XVII. The Status of the Negro Public College: A Statistical Summary 370
Hurley H. Doddy, Associate Professor of Education, Howard University

XVIII. The Negro Publicly-Supported Junior College 386
Carroll L. Miller, Associate Dean, College of Liberal Arts, Howard University

XIX. The Land-Grant Functions of the Negro Public College 396
William H. Martin, Dean of Faculty, Hampton Institute

XX. Liberal Arts and Teacher Education in the Negro Public College 404
Walter G. Daniel, Professor of Education, Howard University

XXI. Critical Review: The Politics of Desegregation 414
L. D. Reddicke, Director, Division of Social Science, Cappin State Teachers College

XXII. The Future Role of the Negro Public College 421
John W. Davis, Special Director, Teacher Information and Security, NAACP Legal Defense & Educational Fund, Inc.

(Articles in the Journal are listed in the Education Index, Education Abstracts and Psychological Abstracts)