

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Editorial Comment: Education in the Black Cities	231
Chapter	Page
I. Education and Black Cities: Demographic Background	233
Edmonia W. Davidson, Chairman, Graduate Programs in Adult Education, Howard University School of Education
II. Black Americans and the City: A Historical Survey	261
Faustine C. Jones, Chairman, Department of Educational Foundations, School of Education, Howard University
III. Financing Inner City Schools: Policy Aspects of Economics, Political and Racial Disparity	283
Thaddeus H. Spratlen, Associate Professor, School of Business Administration, University of Washington, and Adjunct Associate Professor, Graduate School of Management, University of California, Los Angeles
IV. Effective Teachers for Inner City Schools	308
Louise R. White, Director, Teacher Corps, Office of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare
V. State Involvement in the Urban Education Crisis	315
Haron J. Battle, Assistant Superintendent, Gary, Indiana, Public Schools
VI. Sense and Nonsense About Busing	322
Joseph T. Durham, Dean, School of Education, Howard University
VII. Integrated Schools in the Black Cities?	336
Buell G. Gallagher, Vice Chairman, Board of Directors, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
VIII. Urban Education and the Exceptional Child: A Legal Analysis	351
Joseph Clair, Counsel, Subcommittee on Education, Office of Congressman Ronald V. Dellums, U. S. House of Representatives
IX. Vocational (Career) Education in Black Cities	360
Clyde E. DeBerry, Assistant to the Chancellor for Multicultural Affairs, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh
X. Parochial Schools in the Black Cities	379
Sandra N. Smith, Associate Professor, School of Education, Howard University
XI. Inner City Women in White Schools	392
Bernice J. Miller, Associate Director of the Center for Urban Studies, Harvard University Graduate School of Education
XII. Reflections on Issues and Conditions Related to Public Education for Black Students	414
Hugh J. Scott, Professor of Education, School of Education, Howard University, Former Superintendent, D.C. Public Schools
(Articles in the Journal are listed in Education Index, Psychological Abstracts, Sociological Abstracts)	